While the roadsters were dominating the tight road courses, they lacked the aerodynamics for the high speed European circuits in Le Mans. To fix that, the coupe version was developed in 1964 known as the Daytona Coupe.